

This recommendation was made on my LinkedIn account as can be viewed live at the link below:

<https://www.linkedin.com/in/antaojason/>

Raymond Chung

Technical Educator at
Shopify

May 14, 2019, Raymond was
Jason's mentor

Jason did an amazing job at Loblaw Digital. His tenacity to problem solve, drive to learn and willingness to take ownership is what makes him an excellent software developer. I had the pleasure of serving as a mentor to Jason, where he was confident in his ability to ask questions to refine his knowledge, and learn from the experiences and expertise of those around him. This indicates to me that he is taking the right steps toward building his career as a high-quality software developer. During his time on the API team, Jason took full ownership to design, research, and develop the performance metrics system to test the effects of functional code merges, and worked to integrate it into our development pipeline. We did not ask him to, yet he took the initiative to ensure we have a system in place to parameterize our endpoint performance when dealing with calls to numerous backend services. Jason was a pleasure to work with and mentor. Any company would be lucky to have Jason as their next co-op/intern, and I would happily work with Jason again in the future.